The present invention generally relates to semiconductor devices and more particularly to a semiconductor device which includes a gate electrode of a metal silicide layer and a buried layer interposed between an active region and the gate electrode. In order to reduce the resistance of a gate electrode, a metal silicide layer has been formed on the surface of the gate electrode. When the metal silicide layer is formed on the active region, the Fermi level of the active region is affected. In order to prevent the Fermi level from being affected, a buried layer has been conventionally formed between the active region and the metal silicide layer. According to this prior art, however, an additional step of forming the buried layer is required, so that the manufacturing cost may be increased.

System Requirements:

- Windows 7 or higher.
- The latest drivers for your video card.

- Make sure you have at least 16 GB of RAM installed
