It is a factual story about the British housewife Moji Eaton..The single-photon detection properties of the bulky, polymer-based, and low-loss drop-cast perovskites for short-wavelength infrared applications. Large-area p-i-n perovskites based on lead and bismuth halides were prepared by a hot-press method. The photoluminescence of the hybrids showed red-to-near-infrared emission over a broad spectral range. The perovskite thin film was used as a detector for the signal wavelengths of 300 to 1650 nm. The device structure had a p-i-n junction with the p-type layer being a porous film prepared by drop-casting the precursor solution in the presence of porous poly(styrene) spheres. The drop-cast perovskite thin film was characterized by atomic force microscopy, scanning electron microscopy, x-ray diffraction, and energy dispersive x-ray spectroscopy. The photoluminescence properties of the drop-cast perovskite thin film were also investigated. The quantum efficiency of the drop-cast perovskite photodetector showed a distinct dependence on wavelength with a maximum quantum efficiency of 18% at a signal wavelength of 1040 nm. The photocurrent increased rapidly with increasing signal wavelength. Good photoresponsivity and detectivity performance were achieved in the near-infrared region at a fixed bias of 0.6 V. The photogenerated charges can be either slowly transported to the p-n junction of the device or extracted through the hole-collecting p-type layer. The photodetectors based on the drop-cast perovskite also have high stability. Should I Use Cold Process or Hot Process?
