An electronic clinical examination information system: an innovative approach to improve patient safety and efficiency. The objective of this study was to demonstrate the functionality and usability of a clinical examination information system (CEIS) at one academic health center. An electronic clinical examination information system was developed to support clinical decision making by improving the efficiency of clinical examinations and patient safety by reducing the potential for human error. In the current study, a CEIS was incorporated into daily clinical workflow. An internal quality assurance (QA) program was developed to test the QA process and quality of patient care. All staff members completed a questionnaire to demonstrate their satisfaction with the CEIS. A total of 105 clinical questions were extracted from the CEIS to test its utility. Each question used in the test represented a clinical scenario that was represented on the examination sheet of each patient. Additionally, 114 patients were reviewed to evaluate the QA process. The questionnaire results showed that the CEIS had high usability and satisfaction from staff members. The patient's examination sheet as well as the software system were associated with the highest scores. Both the staff and the patients reported a reduction in preparation time and reported an increase in patient/examination efficiency. As a result of the QA process, clinical data were entered and used in a valid and timely manner by the medical staff for patient care. The CEIS is user-friendly, which enhances satisfaction and reduces the time for examination preparation, as well as the overall efficiency of patient care. Washington (CNN) -- We've learned that one of President Obama's key problems with Republicans on the budget is that they simply don't like his ideas. Why else do the House of Representatives and Senate have such different plans for the budget? It's not simply that the House wants to cut spending; House Speaker Nancy Pelosi has made it plain that the main item of concern is the "sequester" spending cuts. And conservatives have made it clear: The House plan is unacceptable. The Senate, though, has a way out. By eliminating the sequester spending cuts -- without cutting spending overall -- the Senate has the best chance of achieving the spending cuts it favors. That's what Majority Leader Harry Reid is doing. And, with the unemployment rate at 7.6 percent and with job creation at an all-time low, it's a winning plan. By all means -- let's cut spending. What's new in I Was Here - Bonus Wallpapers:

I've been lurking on these forums for ages, and I decided to post my first post and my zodiac symbol for April this year. I'm Pisces, and my zodiac animal is the fish. I'm hoping others with the same sign as me will post more symbols. Me, with all of my animals Hopefully someone will call me this as a compliment sometime because it wasn't until I had moved that I managed to get my animals into one picture - shame on me... Cheers, PCP Poetic Justice - September 2009 - I have gained magical powers from the US Government. Re: I was here - Bonus Wallpapers I was born 22 Oct. Its the year 2009 and its now September and I'm Libra, I hope you like my new update. I love other member's pictures and I've meet some very nice people through this forum. Poetic Justice - September 2009 - I have gained magical powers from the US Government. Re: I was here - Bonus Wallpapers I absolutely loved spending time here, I would sometimes spend hours reading every sign, even though I knew fairly well already what they meant. My attempts at sending in my sign failed miserably, though... Needless to say, I relol on AstroFocus'Pisces. Thank you very much to all the members who had their topics up to read on thier sign page. Re: I was here - Bonus Wallpapers I've finally managed to cheat and get one of my animal back together. It actually took me ages to come up with an idea and I think it turned out well (the planets have now gone into hiding and have really exagerated their other (I hope) qualities so it's quite something!). Anyway, I now have the following hierarchy Aries Taurus Gemini Cancer Leo Virgo Libra Scorpio Sagittarius ...oh, and I don't know how to represent Pisces. Is it proper to have 5 of them? Anyway, here's my magickal pisces. Re: I was here - Bonus Wallpapers Here's my astrology wallpapers for April! Descriptions: Sagittarius: "For the last half of your
