The pharmacologic activity of phosphoimidazole in the rat was studied by chronic subcutaneous injection. The compound was administered intramuscularly once daily at 4 different doses (10, 50, 200 and 1000 mg/kg) for 28 days and the experimental animals were killed 28 days after the last administration of phosphoimidazole. The chemical was given in equal volume of sesame oil. After the administration of phosphoimidazole, three different end points were observed: lethality, weight gain and reduction in food and water intake. Hyperphagia and increased grooming, body weight gain, water intake, and blood levels were observed in the animals that received the highest dose of phosphoimidazole (1000 mg

Q: System.ObjectDisposedException when using TestDriven.net Hi i have a Web App that uses a MemoryCache. I am using a Controller that handles caching like this: [OutputCache(Duration=1, VaryByParam="id", Location="~/../outputcache/login/")] public class LoginController : Controller { public MemoryCache Cache { get; set; } public LoginController() { this.Cache = new MemoryCache("LoginCache"); } public ActionResult Index() { return View(); } //More methods } I create an instance of this controller in my unit test and set the Cache in the constructor. Then in my test i simply try and access the index of the controller to set some links. When i do this I get a System.ObjectDisposedException. This happens every time i try and access the cache. Here is the test: [Test] public void Index_ReturnsHomePage() { //Arrange var controller = new LoginController(); controller.Cache = new MemoryCache("LoginCache"); var cacheKey = ""; var httpContext = new DefaultHttpContext(); httpContext.Request.StoreWithParentRequestIfUnresolved = HttpContext.Current.Request.StoreWithParentRequestIfUnresolved; 0cc13bf012
