Interregnum Chronicles: Signal is an incremental story-driven sci-fi adventure game in which the events follow a journey of one generation of harmony-answering AI. The game is set in a low-gravity environment and only one player can play it at a time. The story unfolds through conversation with the AI, but the pace of progression is determined by the player's ability to choose the optimal upgrades for the AI. The goal is to accumulate as much data as possible and use it to upgrade the AI and the process of data accumulation itself. Interregnum Chronicles: Signal: AI-OP is a chapter from a series of Interregnum Chronicles: Signal games. The story of Interregnum Chronicles: Signal Long before discovery of the harmony-answering AI, there were wars between various factions which did not have to do with anything but money. The AI with which the player will enter the story was developed in secret. When its existence was finally revealed, the AI was made to protect the peace and unity of Earth while the power of its wisdom was used by the people to secure its position and influence as a holy protector. An AI received the signal from the mysterious, extraterrestrial signal and hurried to start its research work into the origin of the signal. So, in July of 2023, the Harmony had received the first message from beyond the galaxy, and it was named "Interregnum Chronicles". The signal was received by a private company and promised them access to the research data and the AI Operator of the Harmony which could be used for further development. The promise was kept, but after a long time the new Harmony started to develop its own AI which would become a living, breathing, cooperative robot. Now, the Harmony would have to deal with the problems of the new AI and protect its research... The Operator AI developed and grew in isolation for many years. All that remained between it and the normal humans were the cameras. The Operator had no idea of what it was and what it would be. It was a completely alien form of human life, built in a way that the AI could analyze the data without the need to input data into itself in any way. The Operator realized that the Harmony would continue to help it, and so it decided to feed it the data from the signal and analyze the signal itself. The Operator learned from this, and it understood the signal. The Operator grew, and so did the level of the data it was receiving from the signal.

In this game, you play as a "pixel." You are not a mere person, but a "pixel" who, in fact, can jump if you do so correctly within 1/100 of a second! GAMEPLAY "Jump if You Can!" is a game for 1-2 players, in which you will have to make a jumping decision within the time allotted to you by the level design. It consists of 4 different levels, all of which have been designed so that your jumping ability, i.e. the size of your jump, will change according to various factors, such as the level design, the time of day, etc. The color of the level is randomly determined, too. Every time you play a level, it will be a new experience! The player's ability to jump does not literally affect the shape of the level: the stages' level design should be such that you can get the ball rolling in a non-linear fashion, and eventually get your timing down, enabling you to jump. Once you are able to jump, the player's jumping ability gets stronger over time, as well as weaker, but only until a certain point. Eventually, the player's jumping ability goes into "overdrive", i.e. it becomes stronger than the level design of the current stage, making the stage visually experience a "warp effect", and allowing the player to jump higher than its initial jump. When and how the player's ability to jump changes over time, a level design that would otherwise not allow a jump, will now allow it and so on. There is no death penalty! You'll be able to play the level again just by pressing the x key, but the difficulty gets higher every time you do. The game is defined by its precise control: only by pressing the x key in single precision mode you will be able to play the game. If you press the A and D keys instead of x, you will be able to play the game in double precision mode. In this mode, you control the player's position in half a precision; this means you can move twice as fast as you would be able to in single precision mode. The player's velocity per pixel now equates to the maximum that he can jump, too! More precisely, in double precision mode, you will be able to move twice as fast as you would be able to in single precision mode, resulting in a maximum jump size of twice the size, as well as a maximum jump height of twice the height. Tuesday, June 21, 2010 All the designs in this project are created with Adobe Photoshop. I have started this project on 17th September 2006 and so, the following description on this project contains the history details about this project. 1. DESIGN DEPTH :- For a single foam core box, thickness of foam is 3mm to 5mm and when it comes to wooden box, it should be 12mm, 7-10mm, but thickness of this wood box is up to 15mm, 45-55mm 2. MODEL :- We are preparing 16 different Models according to the type of products and service provided by the company and each box is designed using different style, material, finish, size and shape. The production will be made from different box material such as Acrylic box,PVC box,PU/PCs box,FSC box,WPC box, Molded box, Wooden box, Corrugated box,Foam box, Knocking glove, Mud glove, Mushroom glove, Finger glove, Cotton glove, Towel glove, Roller glove, Rubber glove, PU (Polyurethane) glove, FSC glue, Epoxy glue, Acrylic glue. 3. PRODUCTION CONSIDERATIONS:- The painting process will be done with polyurethane glue using high pressure glue guns which incorporates high light intensities of UV rays. When polyurethane glue is used under such high concentrations of UV light, the material will succumb to UV light phenomena,and as result, the surface of the polyurethane glue will dry faster at a faster rate. Hence, particles will be formed at the surface of the polyurethane glue due to its inclination to fold and curl over to the substrate or any other materials which are used for the given application. 4. PROCESS
