Popular Beach Club Popular Beach Club (often stylized as popularb.c.l or popularb.c.) is an American hip hop radio show broadcast nationally on Sirius XM's Hot 97 channel from mid-2012 to mid-2014 on the five-city branch of the POP2.COM digital broadcast platform, and later on a nationwide broadcast. Programming In January 2012, HOT97 began a 6-hour daily program which showcased an array of hip hop artists and culture from around the world through a Hip Hop International component. The first host of the daily program was DJ Envy; he was succeeded by Pete Rosenberg, who was followed by Tino Beats and then DJ Skee. HOT97 also began a two-hour weekend show, called "HOT-103.7," which continued the Hip Hop International feature. The program was hosted by Pete Rosenberg, along with resident expert Phat Kat. In 2013, with its re-launch, the show was modified to be host-less, with DJ Envy, (or his substitute, Afrika Bambaataa) playing the role of host. The show featured two hours of the weekly programming on Saturdays, followed by two hours of the daily programming on Sundays, and in the alternate weeks, a 1 hour interview show with hip-hop artist. Popular Beach Club permanently ended its run on HOT97 on August 7, 2014. 2BLASTOH In January 2013, Sirius XM announced they would be launching a new nationwide music channel focusing on hip-hop called Hot 97. HOT97 is the flagship station of the channel, with the flagship program being the aforementioned Popular Beach Club. The individuals targeted by this operation included persons whose contribution to spamming and related extortionists techniques is well known. However, the major accomplishment of this operation has been the allocation of similar techniques to telecommunication frauds. This particular use has not been known before in the Group-IB's database.

Image by Getty Images (CNSNews.com) – “We apologize for any unintended offense,” a Muslim presidential aide said, after an ad touting Republican presidential nominee Donald Trump’s call for a “total and complete shutdown of Muslims entering the United States” briefly appeared on a web page run by the Muslim Public Affairs Council (MPAC). The ad on the website had provided tips for Muslims during times of crisis, including times when they face discrimination, harassment or threats. This week, the Trump campaign removed the ad from a web page on its website and from its Facebook page after a viewer expressed concern. The ad briefly appeared on a news video web page run by the California branch of the Council on American-Islamic Relations (CAIR) on Thursday afternoon. The CAIR page is normally free of political advertisements. The Muslim aide said the ad had not been authorized by the campaign. “We do not pay for placement on any site,” he said. “(The ad) has now been removed and at this point is no longer being run by the campaign. We apologize for any unintended offense,” the aide said in a statement to CNSNews.com.SYDNEY, Australia — Every day, more than 700,000 people die from tobacco-related causes — smoking or tobacco-related diseases. According to the World Health Organization, tobacco is the world's biggest preventable health threat. Despite the proven adverse effects of tobacco, the deaths continue. Since the 1980s, worldwide tobacco-related deaths have increased by more than 50% each decade. Numerous health organizations, including the American Cancer Society and Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, have established a link between smoking and risk for several types of cancer. The association between smoking and increased risk of stroke is well documented, with some scientists concluding that smokers have more than five times the risk of suffering a stroke compared to non-smokers. Smoking impacts the cardiovascular system as well, raising a person's risk of developing heart disease, arterial damage, and other complications. Reducing the number of smoking-related deaths and illnesses is a major focus of the World Health Organization's Global Tobacco Control Program. Although implementing tobacco control measures is difficult, within certain countries there are ways to reduce the amount of tobacco consumed, the impact that tobacco has and the number of tobacco-related deaths. How effective are various
