OS X.VANGUARD FILES for HELP is a group for families of students with disabilities. They provide resources and assistance to parents and teachers. About a year ago, a special needs student at Riverview Middle School showed up in the hallways of his classroom, yelling for his teacher. "I love you!" the little boy screeched. "I really like you, too," his teacher responded. The boy's mother was shocked at the dialogue and immediately filed a complaint. "I was completely taken aback by this," she said. "I felt it was wrong. I felt it was inappropriate. I didn't know the protocol for such a situation." The school has since amended its policy and the behavior has ceased, but the incident was a teacher's first introduction to the new parameters of communication with students with special needs. Now, more than a year later, the new protocol has spread to Brandon
