Swami Ayyappan was born about a hundred years ago and he lived for over 70 years. He died in Kerala when he was 83 years old. His life was truly remarkable. He enjoyed a good reputation. His pupils were numerous and his students came from various places and it is said that there were more than 50 thousand followers of Swami Ayyappan. He was called Sri Bhagavan due to his greatness. His name Sankaralingam was taken in June 1882 due to Sri Narayana Theerthaay Namboothirajan taking his name, and Vaikunda Swamy instituted Swami Ayyappan as his successor. Two years later after the death of Swami Ayyappan, a devotee lost his nose and Swami Ayyappan appeared to him in a dream and was asked to heal him. The devotee followed Swami Ayyappan's instruction to take a bath at the Ganga river and his nose healed. After this, many people had nose problems and came to him for healing. He was also known as Swami Nambudiris who had great concern for the poor and working class of society. Swami Ayyappan had a temple in Madurai at the base of the Vavulagiri mountain. It's buildings were destroyed in 1948 when a tsunami swept away the southern part of the city. So, Swami Ayyappan was asked to go to Sabarimala to attend the yagna there by his devotees. He started to meditate on the top of the mountain and many miracles happened to him. The Hindus in Kerala worship him as a saint and not just because of his skillful knowledge of Tamil but also for his beautiful and devotional songs. Even today, when we ask people in Kerala they will admit that there is no doubt that Swami Ayyappan is the only God to them. His songs even now are read and quoted by his devotees even today. He is the God of all of us, the God of goodness, the God of happiness and the God of Kalyana (charity).
